Tough times don't last but tough people do.
It's not the "IQ" but the "I WILL" that is important.
Hard work is the yeast that raises the dough.
The difference between ordinary and extraordinary is that little extra.
Quitters never win and winners never quit.
Life returns what we put into it- with interest.
If you have built castles in the air, your work need not be lost; that is where they should be.
Now put the foundations under them.
An hour before sunrise is worth two thereafter.

Wishing isn't doing. Wishes won't do dishes.
Wishes can't fill a sack.

It isn't the whistle that pulls the train; the steam that toots a whistle will never turn a wheel.

Diligence is the mother of good fortune.
The world is your cow, but you have to do the milking.

It's not the size of the dog in the fight that is important; it's the size of the fight that is in the dog.

Getting lost teaches you how to read a map.
Slow but sure wins the race; grain by grain the hen fills her belly; step by step the ladder is climbed.

The mark of a wise man is his ability to distinguish a setback from a defeat.
You can sit around and wait for a ride, or you can start walking.

Things may come to those who wait but only the things left by those who hustle.

Work is the best thing ever invented for killing time.

Consider the postage stamp. Its usefulness consists in the ability to stick to something until it gets there

Nobody ever climbed up a hill by looking at it.

If you want to get to the top of the hill, you must go up it.

Little strokes fell great oaks; a tree falls not at the first stroke.
